Display unlimited products and variants – regardless of complexity – in 360-degree views and lifestyle settings without needing a single photoshoot. Natural lighting effects elevate every product and make it look as convincing as the real thing.

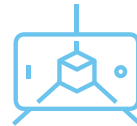

Unlimited configuration options

Share different product styles, shapes, colors, materials, and finishes, reflecting every possible variant in your product catalog, complete with in-built logic. Help define individual preferences and deliver a personalized experience at scale.

Available via the website or an app

Captivate customers online or in-store as they configure products and come up with the perfect design to suit their individual preferences. Photo-realistic 3D views let them “see” products, check measurements, and visualize them within their own homes.

Augmented reality

The AR feature shows exactly how products will appear in the context of your customers’ homes. Photo-realistic 3D views let consumers visualize furniture, instilling confidence in the buying decision.

Tailored to all retail experiences

Customize every aspect to reflect your product catalog, business rules and branding. An app is also available for in-store sales experts to display all product variants from wherever they are without the need for internet access.

Omnichannel buying and selling

Let consumers configure products at home, online, or collaborate with sales and interior designers in-store. Create a seamless omnichannel buying experience, where your online store becomes a natural extension of your showroom.

What we deliver

An interactive, personalized shopping experience showcases your products in a striking visual manner, making the online and in-store configuration process fun and engaging.

In-built logic ensures the products you showcase perfectly match your product catalog, covering simple and complex configurations. All designs meet predefined business rules and constraints.

Augmented reality brings products to life in the real world. Let products shine on simple, plain backgrounds during the configuration process, and then see exactly how they will look within lifelike settings. Customers can even place products in their homes using AR.

Minimal training required.

Product Configurator is intuitive and easy to use for consumers and your sales force. No product is too complex to configure.

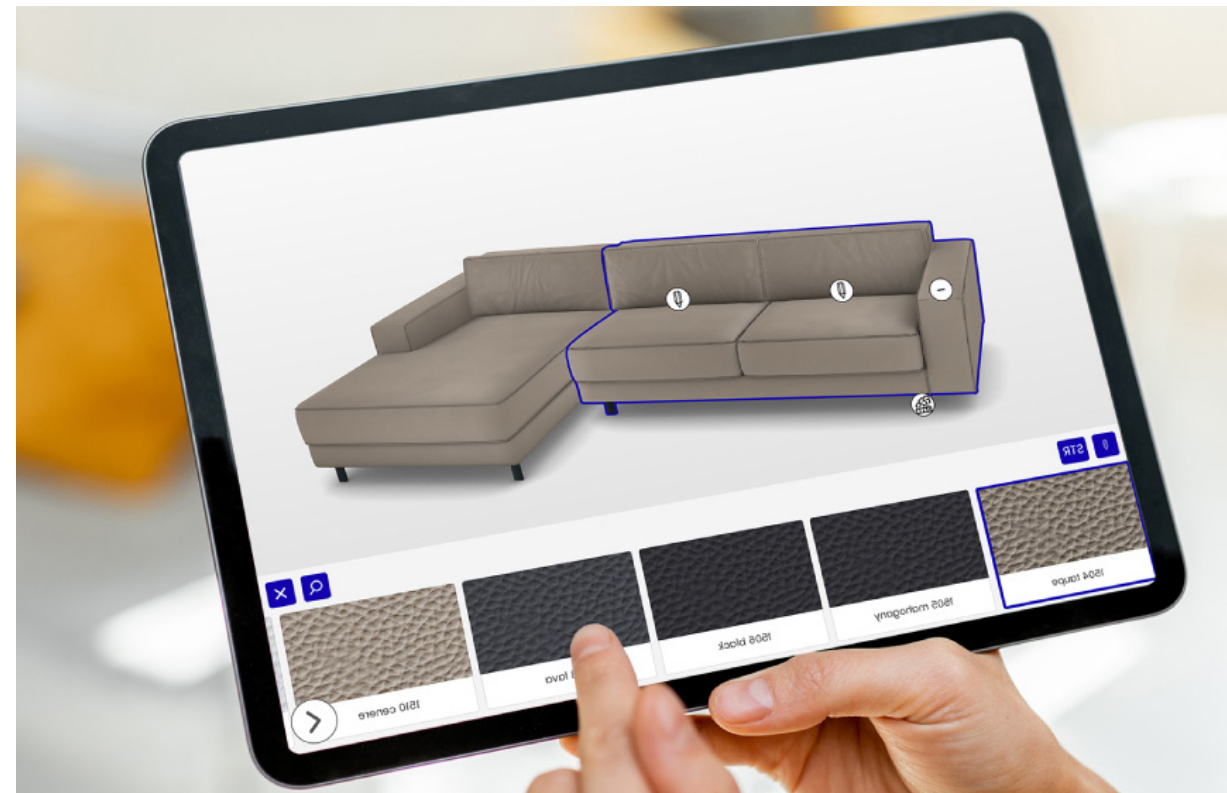

Automatic, real-time updates mean that customers and sales only see products that are available to buy. All edits are automatically saved and updated to generate accurate final quotes.

A global solution that supports multiple languages, currencies, and regional variances, including metric or imperial measurements.

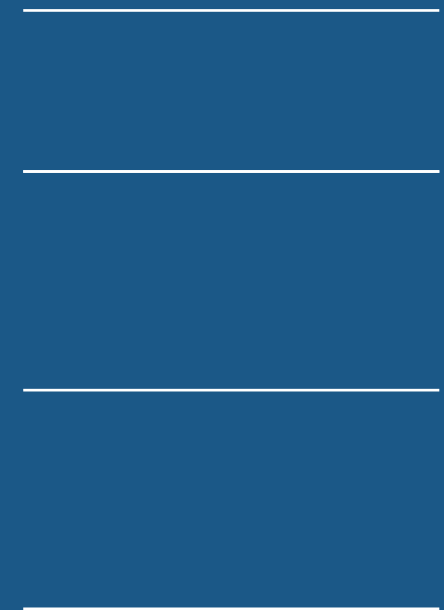

How do customers create purchase-ready products?

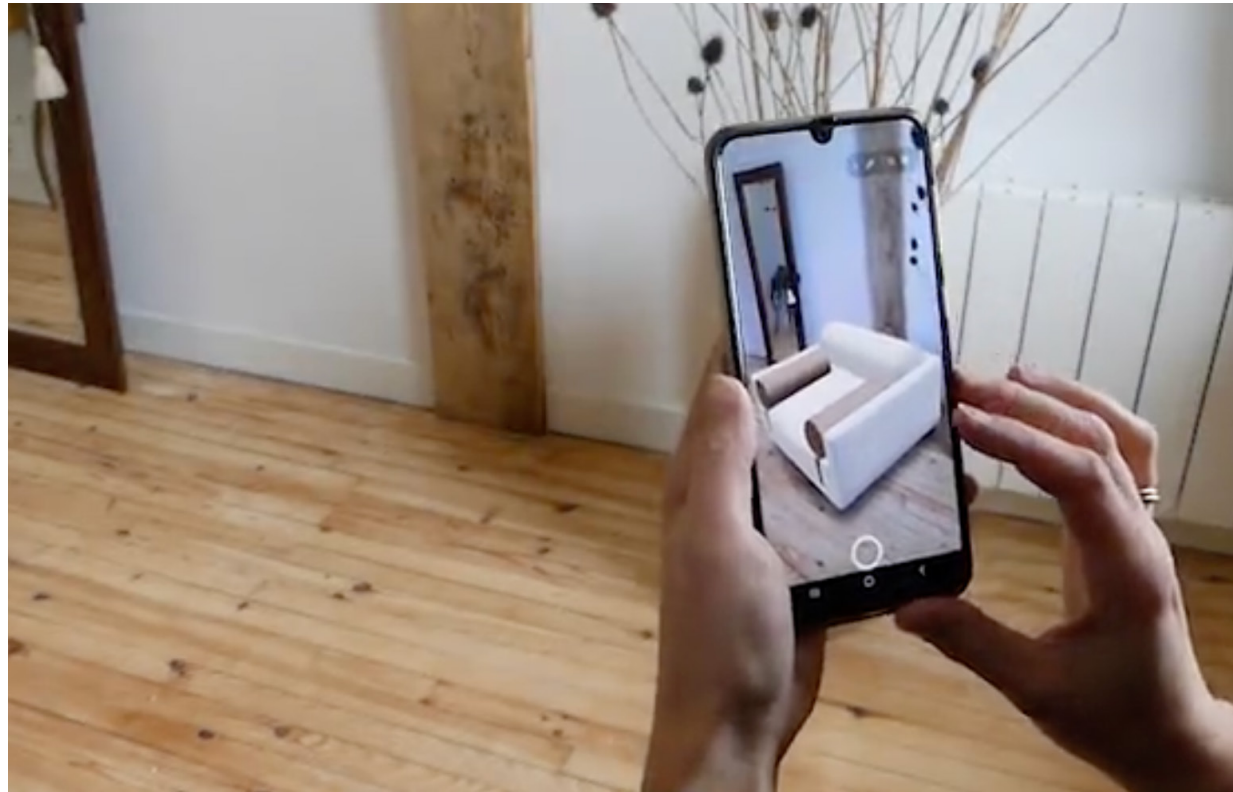

Step 1

Interact with and customize products

Customers scroll through and select the product they wish to buy, switching between all possible variants, including color combinations, shapes, materials, and finishes. They can zoom in and rotate the product to see it at every angle and explore every detail.

Step 2

Imagine and see the product in their home

Augmented reality enables customers to visualize a new sofa, chair, or bed in their home. They can check the color and measurements to be sure the product meets all their requirements before hitting the buy button. Built-in business rules ensure designs are error-free and only manufacturable products can be purchased.

Step 3

Transform the experience into a purchase

Throughout the purchase journey, your sales team can instill confidence and accelerate customers' buying decisions from store to app. With an accurate price and quote, customers can finalize their purchase on your website. Prices and promotional discounts update in real-time as your sales associates or customers switch between products, styles, and variants, eliminating price shocks at checkout.
